NEW YORKERS RALLY ON EVE OF BIG PUSH-NEARLY 400 ATTEND MIDDLEBURY DINNER AT HOTEL MAJESTIC SATURDAY

Prexy Confident That Victory Is Near Brings Out Famous Cane of Gamaliel Painter

"We have gone into this game with absolute confidence that we shall win, and we are going to win, for WE CONQUER IN THE COURAGE OF THE CANE," The place was the dining room of Hotel Majestic, New York City—the time, Saturday evening, April 28—the speaker, President Paul D. Moody. Bringing the time-honored walking stick of Gamaliel Painter down on the table before him with a thump, President Moody concluded his inspiring address with these words.

"It has long been the custom to exhibit this cane only after Middlebury has won a great athletic victory," President Moody explained, "but I feel that this great victory is so nearly won already that I may take the liberty to display the cane here tonight."

350 In Attendance

Approximately 350 people attended this dinner, which was by far the largest and most enthusiastic Middlebury gathering that was ever held in the metropolis. Mr. Edwin S. Sunderland '11, alumni chairman for the metropolitan district of New York, was toastmaster, while Sam P. Davis '21, lead the cheers. The College Glee Club entered after their concert at station WEAF singing "Gamaliel Painter's Cane." "The Panther Song," written by Mrs. Edgar J. Wiley and sung by the Club, proved so popular that a repetition was necessary.

Telegrams of greeting from alumni gathered in various other cities kept arriving during the speaking and were read by Mr. Sunderland. Much applause greeted the reading of a message from the Chicago gathering announcing that the Chicago alumni had pledged themselves one hundred per cent. Groups of alumni at other places expressed their enthusiastic delight in glowing terms of the response of the undergraduate body to the call of their Alma Mater.

Alumni Make Talks

Harry F. Lake '99, addressed the New York gathering at some length with his usual spirited eloquence, receiving tremendous applause. Allan H. Nelson '01, national chairman of the Million Dollar campaign, spoke modestly of his part in the work, and of his intense desire that the New York alumni respond in a fitting manner.

James M. Gifford '77, when called upon by Chairman Sunderland, responded by announcing that the trustees, of which he is one, were ready to stand back of the drive to the extent of $100,000; and the pledges for this amount he placed in the hands of Mr. Sunderland. Rowland R. Shepardson '23, told the body the story of the Tuesday night student rally in McCullough Gymnasium, where the students so loyally expressed their intention to support the drive.

Other Dinners Reported

Members of the faculty were delegated to visit various Middlebury dinners and gatherings in other large eastern cities. Although it was a rainy

UNDERGRADUATES STRIKE KEYNOTE OF BIG CAMPAIGN

How the response of the undergraduates of the College touched the alumni is evidenced by the following extracts from telegrams received at the New York dinner from various centers:

"Hats off to the undergraduates."—Burlington.

"Believe undergraduates' success but first chapter in campaign."—New Haven.

"Hurrah for the undergraduates."—Syracuse.

That the student challenge was accepted by the alumni was indicated by the tone of the telegrams and enthusiasm filled every line of the greetings.

FRESHMAN HAZING TO BE RESTRICTED

Award Minor Letters To Winter Sports Men

At a regular meeting of the Undergraduate Association held in the McCullough Gymnasium last night, the student council recommendation for modified and regulated Freshmen hazing was passed by an almost unanimous vote. The rules adopted are immediately effective and accordingly restrict any further Freshmen hazing this year. In substance they provide for an open week of hazing to begin at 6 a. m. October 1st, 1923, to close at midnight October 6th. The "Rain Party" is to be held the first night of college. The Frosh Prade is to be held the day of the Union Game and the Hat Scrap between the halves of the game. After this date any special hazing will be under the control of the student council.

President Moody Proud of Loyalty Shown By Response

"I am intensely proud to be at the head of a college whose students and alumni possess such great loyalty as has been shown by the spontaneous response to Middlebury's call for aid," said President Paul D. Moody this morning.

"The spirit in which the workers have entered this campaign has convinced me absolutely that the Middlebury Million is destined to be an accomplished reality before they slacken their efforts," he declared.

TWO HARD TRACK MEETS ON CARD

Blue Runners To Meet R. P. I. Saturday

Prospects Good for Usual Clean Sweep in State Contest

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute will be Middlebury's opponent in the first and only home track meet of the season of Porter Field, Saturday at 1.30. The visitors are an unknown puzzle, having competed in no outdoor meets thus far this season altho Middlebury may be assured of her usual hard fight from the engineers. The R. P. I. relay team competed at the Pennsylvania Carnival but failed to place.

After a two day rest the Black Panther cinder path artists will leave for Northfield to compete in the State meet against Norwich and University of Vermont. The fans are confident the Blue team will repeat her performance of the last seven years and triumph over these ancient rivals. However, the men from Burlington have been training since mid-winter in an effort to prevent the Middlebury team from repeating. Their indoor relay team was unusually good but two of its members including the anchor man did not return. Norwich seldom furnishes more than mediocre competition except in the weights.

Middlebury's showing against the strong Williams team was encouraging and, despite the unfortunate arrange-

HUGE THERMOMETER ON OLD CHAPEL SHOWS ENDOWMENT CAMPAIGN IS WELL STARTED TOWARD MILLION

Send Supplement Home If You Live In Other States

Through the courtesy of Donald Tobin, editor of the Middlebury Register, arrangements have been made for each student to recieve a copy of the illustrated supplement being carried in the Vermont papers this week.

It has been suggested that those who live outside of the State or who have friends or relatives in other districts mail their copy of the supplement to some person who would be interested in it with the request that if possible it be posted in a public place.

The inside pages contain a large view of the entire campus and of the student body and are well suited for such display.

If the students will do this, Middlebury will receive a maximum of publicity from the supplement.

FACULTY CHANGES ARE ANNOUNCED

Several Vacancies Yet To Be Filled

There will be several additions and vacancies on the faculty during the coming year, according to a statement issued this morning by Prof. Duane L. Robinson, Secretary of the Faculty.

Erwin E. Drost '23, will be an instructor in Physical Education. He will have charge of freshman athletics under the direction of Prof. Arthur M. Brown.

Prof. Everett Skillings has been made head of the German Department altho Miss Vera Schuller will remain. He will also keep one or two courses in English for next year.

Prof. Wilfred E. Davison will be back and will head the Department of Student Pledges And Gift of $100,000 By Trustees Gives Impetus; Barometer Says "Bright Weather"

Six hundred and twenty thousand dollars of Middlebury's Million was marked up on the huge thermometer on the front of the Old Chapel Tuesday morning after Miss Barbara Stilphen, '23, pulled the cord which unveiled the indicator.

Included in the total registered is the $410,000 already promised or in hand, the $91,000 pledged by the students, the $100,000 gift of the trustees, the pledges of the faculty and several smaller special gifts.

After the first report meeting Friday it is expected that the thermometer will take a decided jump, for judging from the enthusiastic reports from all alumni centers the campaign was due to start off with a bang. With the million just over the hill, each graduate and former student is expected to strain every nerve to put the endowment over and over big.

"Bright weather" for Middlebury was the prediction of the barometer posted on Painter Hall to record the campaign outlook. This was unveiled after the thermometer.

President Moody spoke briefly on the significance of the day in Middlebury history and faculty members present were called on to say a word. The Glee Club sang.

Catalogue Is Deserted In Big, Bad City of New York

D. Haydn Parry Carries Massive Volume to Metropolis—And Leaves It There

A copy of the general catalogue, containing 538 pages and two appendices, is drifting around New York some place looking for a home. It's a hard life, too, for stray books in the big city.

The massive alumni list had a happy home once upon a time, before D. Haydn Parry '24, started for the metropolis via other persons' automobiles to attend the Middlebury dinner there. It lay in dust and quietude in the office of the Middlebury Register.

But D. Haydn was unwary. He left his little pack in the Register office while he scouted about for a ride. And thereby came his downfall.

Ye local editor thought the pack looked light. He feared it might flutter away in the breeze. So with sincere solicitation for Parry's welfare he placed in it the solid blue book mentioned heretofore.

The book got to New York all right. So did D. Haydn, but the book didn't come back.

BLUE RUNNERS LOSE FIRST CONTEST TO FAST WILLIAMS TEAM

Cold Rain Dampens Ardor Of Both Outfits

SCORE 88-47

Sikorski High Point Man Earning 12 Tallies

In a cold, drizzling rain, which made the usually fast Williams track heavy and slow, the Middlebury track team was defeated by the well-balanced veteran squad of the Berkshires on Saturday last by the score of 88-47.

Williams excelled in the track events and hurdles while Middlebury was clearly superior in the field events. Despite the adverse weather conditions, all the running events were unusually fast and in all likelihood a more favorable day would have seen many Williams records smashed. Williams had a trio of sprinters, led by Miller, winner of bot hsprints, who demonstrated their superiority in the short distances by scoring 17 out of a possible 18 points. Carboy scored Middlebury's lone point with a third in the 220 yd. dash.

The quarter mile proved the most exciting race of the day, "Doc" Cook of Middlebury being nosed out by the Williams captain, Stowers, in the last few yards after leading three quarters of the distance. Considering the fact that more than thirty yards of the course was ankle deep in water, the time 50 4-5 seconds, was remarkably fast.

Captain Shelvey and Fish showed their heels to all competitors in the mile run. Shelvey ran like a veteran, setting his own pace all the way.

Sikorski of Middlbeury was high point man of the meet with 12 points, closely followed by Miller, the Purple speed demon with 10.

Coach Brown is pleased with the showing of the Blue team and promises a much better rounded squad with a week more of training, weather permitting. The next meet is with R. P. I., May 5, closely followed by the State meet at Northfield on the eighth.

Summary:

100 yd. dash, won by Miller, W.; Dodge, W., second; Olmstead, W., third. Time, 10 2-5 sec.

220 yd. dash, won by Miller, W.; Dodge, W., second; Carboy, M., third. Time, 22 2-5 sec.

440 yd. dash, won by Stowers, W.; Cook, M., second; Perkins, W., third. Time 50 4-5 sec.

Half mile run, won by Richmond, W.; Keep, W., second; Kendall, M., third. Time 2 min., 4 3-5 sec.

Mile run, won by Shelvey, M,; Fish, M., second; Driscoll, W., third. Time, 4 min., 48 sec.

Two mile run, won by Fasce, W,; Fitchen, W., second; Oliver, M., third. Time, 10 min., 44 sec.

120 yd. hurdles, won by Barnes, W.; Coleman, W., second; Peck, M., third. Time, 16 3-5 sec.

220 yd. hurdles, won by Beede, W.; Howe, W., second; Carlton, M., third. Time, 28½ sec.

Pole vault, won by Chapin, W.; Krichbaum, M., second; Whitten, M., and Davis, W., tide for third. Height, 10 ft., 3 3in.

Shotput, won by Wittenburg, M.; Sikorski, M., second; Wishard, W., third. Distance, 34 ft., 1 in.

Hammer throw, won by Whitney, M.; Humes, W., second; Sikorski, M., third. Distance, 100 ft., 1 in.

Discus throw, won by Sikorski, M., Cass, M., second; Wittenburg, M., third. Distance, 103 ft., 11 in.

Javelin throw won by Wishard, W.; Sikorski, M., second; Cass, M., and O'Brien, W., tied for third. Distance, 128 ft.

Green Mountains Charm Visitor; View Leaves Great Impression

By One Who Was A Stranger

Across the front of the marble pillared chapel at Middlebury College, Vermont, is this inscription:

"THE STRENGTH OF THE HILLS IS HIS ALSO"

I read it for the first time on a morning in mid-March, one of those mornings when the earth seems to be stirring uneasily under the heavy winter's snow for all the world like a sleeping youngster who half an hour later will be dressed and ready for play. Water was trickling down the hard packed pathways and over in the village the old timers were saying: "Sap'll be startin' to run. 'Twont be long now."

It was chapel time and with the booming of the spire bell I had automatically fallen in with the line of students pushing up the straight pathway to the house of worship on the hill. Typical of the old New England meeting house is the Middlebury chapel and it stands in clear outline against the sky, undeviating purpose portrayed in every one of its simple lines.

"The strength of the hills"

Over the crest of the rise I saw the Adirondacks, far away across Lake Champlain. Surely there was strength in them. They were distant, but somehow it seemed that distance was called for. I felt that here was a training ground for far sighted vision in life. Yes, it must be the Adirondacks referred to in that classically lettered text.

But as I came out after the simple service and looked down across the campus, over the town and beyond to the friendly ridges of the Green Mountains. I knew that I had been wrong, These were the hills.

They rose in easy waves until the crest of the topmost joined with the clouds. Ten miles, perhaps, of rolling valley lay between but it seemed much less. These hills were neighborly, they were protecting and they were beautiful with a beauty that is of the Green Mountains alone.

Wholly fitting it is that the chapel should be so situated, facing the East and those comforting moutains. To me they seemed an integral part of the college, in spirit, so perfectly did they fit into the scheme of things.

That afternoon I learned that a great tract of them did in fact belong to Middlebury College and from Professor P. C. Voter I heard the story of the Long Trail, a skyline path through an unspoiled wilderness.

Thirty thousand acres of forest lands in the Green Mountains belong to Middlebury. They were bequeathed to the college by the late Joseph Battell, a Middlebury citizen, who acquired them bit by bit, solely to preserve in primeval state one of the most beautiful sections of the mountain range which forms the backbone of the state. He devoted a large part of his life and fortune to the acquisition of these moutain lands and having gained them selected Middlebury College to keep them in trust as a public playground.

The trust is being kept by Middlebury, not only in letter but in spirit, and in the keeping of the trust I found that the Long Trail played a most important part.

From Massachusetts to the Canadian line stretches this trail, built in great part by the personal labor of such disciples of nature and the open road as is Professor Voter. For 250 miles one can follow the pathway through the heart of the Green Mountains, now through stretches of unbroken forest and now coming out on mountain meadows or rocky points from which can be seen entrancing vistas of serried hills, ending perhaps at the silver thread of Lake Champlain at the base of the Adirondacks or rolling on to where an undefined horizon marks the boundary of a sea of hills.

For twenty-five miles this trail winds through college property and ten miles of the way, the Lake Pleiad section, is cared for by the Middlebury group of the Green Mountain Club, the organization which brought the trail into being. Professor Voter is a trustee of the club and one of its most enthusiastic members. Eventually the Middlebury group expects to care for the entire section of trail in the Battell forest.

I saw snapshots Professor Voter had taken on winter hikes and on balmy summer days. There were brooks and dells, restful landscapes and sheltering lodges shown in them.

Of these lodges there are an unbroken string, at distances from three to eight miles. They are simple structures, built mostly of logs, and in them are bunks, stoves and essential cooking utensils. It is possible to travel light on the Long Trail, thanks to these lodges.

The Sucker Brook lodge was built under the direction of Professor Voter with the aid of some Middlebury students and a citizen or two. It was hard work, dragging the timbers into place, but the satisfaction of completing a shelter which would serve in future years many fellow devotees of the Long Trail and about the evening fires of which would be held a treasured series of contemplative conversations made the workers feel that they had been paid in full. Even the backache which accrued to Professor Voter after carrying a grindstone four miles over a rugged trail from the neares road was not begrudged.

Hundreds of persons pass over the trail each season, in twos and threes, singly, and in parties of half a dozen or more. But it is not a place of crowds, such as all too many vacation spots. There is solitude enough for all. Down in the valley the farmer folk go about their work little conscious that on the cool, green heights above them the skyline breeze may be bringing new ambition to a weary young clerk or whispering fresh sermons into the ear of an almost discouraged minister.

Those whose farms are near the trail, however, know those who pass by. The hikers come for butter and eggs, for milk and bread and for fresh vegetables to satisfy appetites made keen by the stimulating exercise. Every few miles there is generally a convenient farm where such provisions can be purchased, which is a blessing for those who want to journey with bodies as free of burden as their minds in that enervating atmosphere.

Besides having some of the most beautiful scenery in the whole Green Mountain system the Battell tract contains some of the best remaining stands of red spruce and hardwoods in Vermont.

A new forester was recently appointed by the College, and it is his intention to make the care of the forest his life work. The task is a great one, but the object is most worthy and one of which the institution can be proud.

It would seem that a college with such extensive lands would be rich, but by the terms of the bequest only a limited amount of timber can be cut annually and that must be cut with a definite plan of reforestation in mind. Parts of the land are to be kept in their primeval form so after the college has kept the wishes of its benefactor there is only a moderate income left from the forest property. That is one of the reasons why Middlebury now seeks a million dollar endowment fund.

Many of the men and women who travel the Long Trail do not know that they cross part of a college campus. They do not know of that upstanding chapel on the crest of the knoll nor of the eyes that seek a benediction from the mountains to the East. Their knowledge of the book of Isaiah may be incomplete; but deep in the hearts of all who know the Green Mountains is graven that text, even as it is graven over the chapel door.

New College Song Which Glee Club Popularized

By Mrs. Elma P. Wiley

I went to the Animal Fair
The Mascots all were there.
The Yale Bull-Dog
Was up on a log
Announcing a feature rare,
"My friends you soon will view
A Mascot who is new,
A Panther Black
Whose very track
Will nearly crack your heart in two."
The Princeton Tiger roared,
The Army Mule did bray,
The Old Brown Bear
Reared up in the air
And started to tear away,
But on the Panther came
And fought his way to fame.
The Mascots all
Both great and small
Have never been able his spirit to tame

HOLD DANCE AFTER RALLY SATURDAY NIGHT

While the alumni all over the country were meeting at Middlebury dinners, a large gathering of the undergraduate body held a rally in the McCullough Gymnasium Saturday evening at 7:15. It had been planned to receive President Moody's address and the Glee Club Concert which were being broadcasted from New York. Unfortunately, due to the distance and the condition of the air, it was impossible to hear anything satisfactorily except one verse of "Gamaliel Painter's Cane," which brought forth loud applause. After the radio program was concluded, refreshments were served and an orchestra composed of Gollnick, Ashley, Adams, and Egan furnished music for dancing. Professor and Mrs. V. C. Harrington chaperoned.

INTERCOLLEGIATE

University of Maine—A chapter of the national scholastic fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa has recently been established at the University of Maine.

Penn State—Before he can become a Sophomore socially, every Freshman of the class of 1927 and those thereafter, will be required to pass an examination covering Penn State history, traditions, government, customs, and statistics. The examination will be conducted by the Student Council and may be a required credit for all Freshman courses. This innovation at Penn State promises considerable good for the institution. One of the necessary steps in the inauguration of this custom will be the publication of a book to be used as a text in preparation for the examination. The influence that this custom may have, bids fair to extend over many years and to reach great numbers of students. The Alumnus who graduates will be better acquainted with his Alma Mater, and may, incidentally, be more interested in her welfare. The Undergraduate will be able to talk more convincingly on matters pertaining to the college and his value to the institution will thus be increased.

ALUMNI PLUNGE INTO BIG CAMPAIGN

GREAT NATIONAL ORGANIZATION IS OFF FOR MILLION

Loyal Middlebury Grads And Special Students Are United

The strongest organization of alumni of Middlebury College that has ever been built up in the century and a fifth of the institution's history yesterday plunged into the business of raising an endowment of one million dollars.

Although the majority of the alumni live in the northeastern section of the United States, the campaign organization covers the nation. From Oregon to New York the graduates of the Vermont college have been mobilized for the drive and memories of days spent in the shadow of the Green Mountains reawakened by a series of leaflets and illustrated booklets which carry far not only the story of Middlebury but the name of Vermont.

The complete list of the national, district and local chairmen follows:

National Chairman, Allen H. Nelson, New York City; Honorary National Chairman, Rev. James L. Barton, D. D., Boston; Alumnae National Chairman, Mrs. Bertha Brainard Adams, Middlebury; Honorary National Chairman for Special Students, Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Arlington, Vt; Treasurer, E. J. Waterman, New York City; Committee on Special Gifts, Hall McCullough, New York City; Committee on publicity, Joseph A. Peck, New York City; Committee on organization, Sanford H. Lane, New York City; Committee on speakers, Harold D. Leach, New York City; Committee on faculty and undergraduates, Dr. Edgar J. Wiley, Middlebury; Committee on class campaigns, Duane L. Robinson, Middlebury.

Illustrated Supplement Tells Story of College

Vermont Papers Carry Attractive Pictorial Section In Regular Edition This Week

Every citizen in Vermont will have an opportunity to become familiar with Middlebury College through a four page newspaper supplement which is this week being distributed by all papers in the state.

Profusely illustrated with views of the campus and carrying information about the College and its endowment campaign the supplement is being included in a regular issue of each paper. A large panorama of the campus as it is today and a group picture of the student body are included.

Great appreciation of the cooperation shown by the state press in distributing this attractive supplement to their readers has been expressed by those connected with the College. The supplement is declared not only to be of value to the College but to the state as a whole, since many of the papers will reach far into other territory and will carry the name of Vermont in a vivid way to residents of distant parts.

Arrangements for printing the supplement were made through the committee heading the campaign.

VARSITY DROPS ONE GAME AND WINS ONE AS SEASON OPENS

Lowell Textile Proves Too Strong For Blue

TOWNE STARS

New York Teachers Prove No Match Friday

The Black Panther Cubs pried the lid off the local baseball season last Wednesday when they lost to the Lowell Textile aggregation by a 10-6 score. They came back on Friday though, by trampling roughshod over the New York State Teachers to the tune of 10-1.

Captain Hastings' men showed plenty of fight in the opening game but due to their lack of practice, did not have the punch to push over a win on the Lowell team. The cold weather hindered both sides. The visitors started off strong by scoring three runs in the first session. Although Middlebury had little trouble in touching Farwell for hits, they failed to come through in the pinches and Farwell was never in danger.

Hastings gave a good exhibition of pitching but could not seem to apply the brakes at the critical moments. He was hit rather freely. Frank Towne who was put in for the last three innings by Coach Morey was the feature of the game. The cloth-makers could not seem to solve his delivery, strike after strike being called on them by the umpire. Only once was Towne nicked safely.

The enjoyment of the game was marred to a great extent by the low temperature, which combined with a high wind, dampened the ardor of the stands and slowed up the game.

Glee Club Ends Season With New York Concert

Program Enthusiastically Received By Alumni; Radio Broadcasts Songs

The Glee Club returned from New York Sunday morning, having completed its last tour of the season. Programs were given at Springfield, Ludlow, and Rutland, Vt., at radio station WEAF, and at the endowment drive banquet at Hotel Majestic, New York City

At Springfield and at Ludlow the collegians were very well-received, a full house greeting them at the latter place. Although the audience at Rutland was comparatively small, it was enthusiastic in its applause, especially for the college songs rendered.

The program given at each of these places was essentially the same as that presented at previous concerts of the Club, with a few variations by the male quartet and by Allan Hunter, tenor soloist. Haydn's "Serenade," a new piece for the quartet met with much approval. "The Panther Song," written by Mrs. Edgar J. Wiley, proved to be a very valauble addition to the program, which other audiences have considered a little heavy for a collegiate club.

At station WEAF, the Glee Club followed President Moody's address by "Song of the Marching Men" by Hadley, "Song to Middlebury" by Rogers '23, "Gamaliel Painter's Cane." Hunter sang "Within the Garden of my Heart" by Scott. The male quartet finished the radio program with "Who is Sylvia" by Schubert.

"The Panther Song" proved so popular at the alumni dinner at Hotel Majestic that the Club repeated it. Prata played "Meditation from Thais" by Massenet and the Club and quartet sang selections as called for, no formal program having been arranged.

The distinction of having three of the oldest living alumni present at a Middlebury Million dinner last Saturday went to the Addison County gathering, at which 86 alumni and faculty were present. Dr. Merritt H. Eddy, of the class of 1860, Judge E. A. Hasseltine, of the class of 1862, and Dr. Ezra Brainerd, of the class of 1864, came to the dinner in Hepburn Commons to do their share for the institution which has for so many years been a factor in their lives.

Chicago Record Beaten

Chicago's challenge for other gatherings to equal their dinner at which members of the classes of '64 and '66 were present was taken up by the Middlebury residents and a wire sent to New York telling of the record representation here.

Wayne C. Bosworth, alumni chairman for Addison County, presided at the dinner and talks were made by Professor Kingsley, F. Beacom Rich, Miss Charlotte Marsh, Alumnae Chairman for the county, Professor Lacalle and Professor Collins. A sophomore quartet sang specially prepared selections which challenged the alumni to equal the hundred per cent subscription record made by the undergraduates.

Tennis Team Playing Holy Cross This Afternoon

Ashley And Rich Only Veterans—Clowar And Twitchell To Make Up Team

The Middlebury Tennis Team left yesterday noon for Worcester, Mass., where they were to meet the formidable Holy Cross Team this afternoon.

The Blue court men have had no opportunity thus far to exhibit their strength and have had but one day of practice. There are but two veterans of the last year's team now in school, Manager Ashley and Rich. Hickox, winner of the interclass tournament last year did not return to college this semester; consequently the choice of the two next best does not give the Middlebury team a formidable appearance. Krichbaum, runner-up, is also a track man, a sure point man on the pole-vault event, and will not make the trip. Coach Bonney has selected Clowar '25, and Twitchell '26, to round out the quartet. The latter has an enviable preparatory school record and should show up well.

Prexy Gets Big Static Applause

It was 7:29. The radio set in Hepburn Commons was being tuned in to catch President Moody's New York address. With tense ears the Addison county alumni sat about the dinner tables. Would they be able to hear it?

There was a whine, like a Packard pulling up a hill in low, ending with a disgusted "Rocks! Rocks! Spizv-z-a-z-t! Flup!

The set was hooked up, at least. Seven thirty came. "Scre-e-e-e-ow-ow-ow-w! Zug! Zug! celebrated the set. A twisting of the dials made all owners of phonographs shudder. It sounded too much like baby scraping a needle across a record.

Then there was a pause, punctuated only by "Whuf! Whufs!" It was the calm before the storm. The attentive youth at the dials was listening with cocked head to the faint sounds. He made a slight adjustment and—

"bury College, Wh-e-e-e-e, yaf, yaf, Whe-e-e-e," shouted the radio. President Moody had started his speech.

The voice dropped to a whisper. Evidently the president was telling the New Yorkers something in confidence. A burst of static applause drowned out the faint words with an enthusiastic "Whe-e-e-e-e, Tuck, t-t-t-tuck, Wow—w—w—z—z—zv—pt!" The Hepburn audience applauded too, not to be outdone. President Moody's voice gained strength.

"—to send your boys and girls to college is glug glug spff whooff and at Middlebury we are trying not only to wheeeeeeeeeeee spluf but also to make zzzzzzz clack." And so on to the end.

The address over and the glee club selections sung, Mr. Alumnus turned to Miss Alumna and said:

"It's a wonderful thing, that radio, isn't it?"

But it would have been a poor radio set which did not pick up the Middlebury spirit. The air was full of it.

WE DIFFER

It is always interesting to learn the opinions of our neighbors, particularly when their ideas differ from our own. The editorial comment of the "Dartmouth" on our recently announced extra-curriculum credit program is stimulating, though it rather strengthens than weakens our enthusiasm for the new system.

"Paternalism of the most pronounced type" is the term applied to the proposed plan. Further on, the comment runs, "We cannot see any reason for believing that outside interests are inevitably of benefit to all men. There is a certain satisfaction to be sure in controlling any activity but such opportunities can be counted on one's fingers. Outside of the few worthwhile positions there is an appalling drabness about the whole field of non-athletic activities. We do not believe that any man can engage in some line of work for four years, be rewarded at the end with some distinctly minor position, and not feel a powerful sense of disillusionment as to the real worth of his experience. He cannot help feeling that he has wasted a good deal of valuable time that might have been put to far more productive use, and he begins to suspect that College would be better left as a means of gaining an education, rather than of encouragement to the expenditure of countless hours trying for some honor of questionable value. The fact that such an awakening comes usually in senior years testifies to the truth of the statement that the most valuable thing about being a senior is learning the mistakes made in freshman, sophomore and junior years."

This quotation does not cover the whole editorial but gives, we hope, fairly, the basis of the criticism of the Middlebury plan. It will be noted that the pith of the whole argument is summed up in the phrase "A certain pleasure and satisfaction in controlling any activity." The stand taken is that only in honors gained can one measure activities. Is such a position tenable? Do not activities give more than temporary prominence in the admittedly somewhat artificial life of the campus? Doesn't the fact that a man tried out for a managership and lost, while in college, help him when he is bucking life's problems in after years? Help him perhaps as much as the fact that he passed Math. 2 with an A?

It is a difficult thing to judge the exact training value of any physical or mental exercise. Such a judgment must always be more or less a matter of opinion; however, we believe that the faculty was recognizing a real and vital part of undergraduate training when a plan for giving extra-curriculum credits was adopted. The administration of the plan will be difficult at first and readjustments will doubtless be necessary, but we are confident that in adopting the principle Middlebury is making real progress and is taking a step which will mean much in the way of wellrounded training to future generations of Middlebury students.

THE WHY OF GIRLS' ATHLETICS

Now that the women's track-season has begun, and baseball and tennis are not far behind, the question naturally enters many girls' heads, "Shall I, or shall I not, go out for a team this spring"

From the number who sign up each year, we know that the majority of girls do not strive for places on the various teams. The same few compete for practically every sport!

Why should girls enter the competition for athletics?

Well, perhaps health—a strong, active body is the first thing to be gained from supervised exercise. Primness and timidity which are in evidence especially in those beginning college are modified to a considerable degree. Size, which often makes a girl awkward, is in her favor in athletic contests. Both a feeling of constraint and self-consciousness are done away with. Perhaps the greatest advantage aside from that of health, is the ability gained to think and act quickly, and to concentrate better.

Girls are individualistic by nature and training. They have to learn, not only the rules of a game but how to work with others for a common victory. For this reason, class and college teams are a great influence for democracy. Every one must do team work to live usefully and successfully in this world!

IN APPRECIATION

With the disappearance of the snow, we found that the campus was littered with dead leaves, papers, and other kinds of refuse that had accumulated during the winter. However, there is a staunch old friend of the college who is too proud to allow such a condition to long exist. In a few days we saw a force of men working on the green and on the roads and paths. Now the campus looks fine in its spring attire all ready for Junior Week.

All hats off to our good friend, "Billy" Farrell!

George MacFarland was one of the six thousand "400" which inhabit that Metropolis lately made famous by the Glee Club Trip and Mayor Hylan. In other words, he was One of the Bluest of New York's Blue—no, Dr. Stratton, not Laws—Bloods. He was the kind of a Dumb Egg whose thoughts were thunk for him by Jeeves, the faithful Valet with the Striped Waistcoat popularized by Paramount Pictures (adv.) Do not gather, Elinor Glyn's gentle reader, however, that Georgie was always thus, for Lately he had seen "Robin Hood," and had Developed into a regular Ethel M. Dell He-man.

At the time our Tale opens, he was waxing werry Wroth at the feeble attempts of Mr. Enright's Don't Advocates to apprehend the Burden on Society who had walked off with his favorite Cameo Cravat Garnisher. At this Crisis in his otherwise club-tea-evading a Match-making Mother Life Jeeves failed him, and thus rudely thrown on his own Resources, he twirled the superfluous Growth on his upper Tea Sipper, and made a very foolish Wager with two of his friends. Said Wager necessitated his dropping the Mayflower-County Cork Handle of MacFarland, assuming the County Cork-Mayflower one of McGinnis, and traveling Fast and Loose.

After a more or less hazardous Journey taking place while the Scenery is being pounded on, and the Melody Boys render "Running Wild," he reached Arizona, the land of the great Wastes and Thirsts, and immediately met Dolly, the Sheruff's Motherless Waif. Although Dolly was a Cup Cuddler and Munched her Bread, she was a Daughter of the Great Wide and Open, and without being pushed very hard, George fell. When he came back to this Vale of Tears and Chicago, the only ventilation he had came though iron bars. Our hero was in the Calaboose.

We would tell more of this Enchanting Story, but the Chairman of the Committee forbids.

Georgie, of course, marries the Gal and wins the Money without handing over the "Papurrs" or being forced into the Raging Storm to the sound of Desperate Desmond's mocking Laughter.

Believe me, Xantippe, "Believe Me, Xantippe" is Some Play.

Suggestions on How to Raise Your Quota

If you stutter, charge admission to let people hear you say "Middlebury's Million."

If you sing, put on a concert. If you don't sing, say it with bank notes. But don't try to raise them.

If you have a borrowing neighbor, put a quarter-in-the-slot meter on the lawn mower.

If you don't have a borrowing neighbor, use his lawn mower and give the price of a new one to Midd.

If you have a girl, spend the evenings in the parlor instead of at the movies. If she's a Middlebury girl, she can save too by turning out the light.

If you write poetry, hand your verses to the local editor and save stamps and the New York editors.

If you live on a farm, water some stock for Middlebury.

If you're lucky, bet 'em high.

If you're religious, just sign a pledge. The Lord will provide.

If you've got the Old Midd spirit, you'll get the money anyway.

NEW MUSIC COURSES ARE TO BE OFFERED

Faculty Enlarged; Miss Minnie Hayden to be Dean; New House Provided

The Summer School of Music this year will present a modest but worthy expansion of its work which, it is felt, will enlarge the service hitherto rendered in this important field.

Miss Minnie Hayden, who has for several years conducted a Studio in voice in connection with the Summer Session, and who is now permanently connected with the college, will act as Dean of the Music School and offer courses in vocal training.

Prof. Lewis J. Hathaway, head of the Department of Music in the college, will conduct his work in the Studio, and give instruction in piano, organ, and harmony, besides offering an appreciation course.

Mr. Alfred Larsen, a member of the Department of Music in the college and head of the Larsen Violin School in Burlington, will conduct courses in violin and 'cello.

Miss Gladys Lott, who has been previously associated with Miss Hadyen is a graduate of the Leland Powers School of the Spoken Word, a private pupil of Yvette Gilbert, and a well known reader. Miss Lott will offer courses in Platform Art and Recital Repertoire.

A comprehensive course in Public School Music will be given by Mr. Earl A. Braman, supervisor of public school music in Angola, Indiana.

In connection with the School of Music, a Music House will be provided for the residence of women students not living in Middlebury. This house will be under the general charge of Miss Hayden, and will be her residence as well as that of the students.

"Leadership" Subject of Bishop Brent's Sermon

Episcopal Bishop of Western New York Warns Against Nationalism

"Those who have the fortune to begin life in this era have great responsibility of leadership before them," said the Rt. Rev. C. H. Brent, Episcopal Bishop of western New York at Sunday vespers. "A leader must have a fixed purpose, a clear eye, and a single mind. A leader has a duty which is perilous and inspiring; the responsibility of the characters of others. If that responsibility lacks spiritual power and moral soundness, it can not but fail. Leaders are men who walk before; they are not merely sign posts.

"Mankind is lacking in leadership today in regard to religion and world affairs," said Bishop Brent. "It is heresy to think that while you are young you can give yourself to the small things and that when you are old you can think of the great things. Life rises upwards as far as God and stretches outward as far as mankind. Moral life without a vision of God and a companionship with God can not go far.

"Nationalism alone is not sufficient for high minded men and women," continued the speaker. "Our responsibility is to bring about the peace we are living for. If America would take a stand toward the Near East as she did toward Cuba, the European nations would agree. Christ's method of brotherhood must be used instead of war to settle disputes. War is the foulest as well as the cruellest means. If we would supplement ourselves, our fortunes, and our thoughts with Christ's doctrines," concluded Bishop Brent, "we would see little of the ravages and the horrors of war, but a constructive peace which gives all things the greatest opportunities."

STUDENTS' PRANKS NOT AS OF OLD

Change In Attitude Noted By Prof. Sanford

"When I first came to Middlebury the janitor always approached the chapel an hour before time for the service with fear and trembling lest he find a cow, a load of hay or a massive wagon decorating the platform," said Profesor Sanford in an interview on the college students of then and now. "Today, the students themselves would not allow any such thing to take place."

That essentially describes the change in spirit, a change of national scope, in the attitude of the student body of thirty or more years ago to the prevalent spirit of the present day, he said.

Pranks of all kinds were played continually by the undergraduates in those earlier years, Professor Sanford said. One of the favorite stunts was to screw down the reading desk in the chapel so it could not be moved to one side when a day of student oration was at hand.

"The janitor was up to all their tricks, however," told the professor, and on the morning before the exercises would test the desk to see if it was fastened down. To get around this the students hit upon a truly ingenious scheme.

"A piece of wire was run up through the platform and fastened to the desk so it would move enough to appear entirely free. The janitor tested it as usual and all seemed well.

"When the two students whose duty it was to move the desk to one side stepped up, however, they found their efforts of no avail. The desk was anchored, and anchored to stay."

Wholesale carving of initials in desks was common in the past, too, Professor Sanford said. "But in the past fifteen years I don't believe a single initial has been carved in my classroom."

Closer fellowship between student and instructor is held by the professor to have had much to do with the change in attitude, students no longer regarding the professor in the light of a tyrant but as a fellow man.

"They seem to be able to tolerate us more easily than when I began teaching," he stated.

Hazing, on the other hand, has grown with the years, it has been the observation of Professor Sanford. "When I was in college there would have been a rebellion had we been made to do the things the freshman of today submits to. Brutal hazing, such as was a popular theme of writers for Sunday supplements a decade ago, is not evident but many little things are forced upon the first year man in a good humored way now that were not thought of before.

"For instance," he said, "I was walking up to chapel one day when past me on the grass came a freshman turinng handsprings up the slope, and saying with each handspring, 'I'm a kangaroo, I'm a kangaroo.'"

Hazing of an innocent nature does no harm and in many cases is valuable in helping a chesty high school graduate come down to his proper station in life, believes the professor.

NINE BREAKS EVEN IN OPENING GAMES

Errors by Lowell 8; by Middlebury 6.

Three-base hits: Reynolds and Gallagher.

Base on balls: Off Farwell 6; off Hastings 2.

Struck out: by Farwell 8, by Hastngs 5, by Towne 4.

Double play: Reynolds to Scanlon to Jay.

Passed ball: Olsen.

Umpire: Kenworthy.

Friday's Game Easy

By Friday, the thermometer had risen about thirty degrees while the Varsity's stock went up considerably more. Hastings and his crew had a good batting practice at the expense of the New York State Teachers' College. Ganior seemed to have little on the ball, and his support was also weak. The Blue won in a walkaway.

Middlebury scored twice in the first inning and four times in the second, hitting the ball and stealing bases as though her opponents were many miles from the actual scene of action. For the remainder of the game she took things easy and only scored three runs.

Witham pitched the first three innings for Middlebury, Towne the next three, and Williams finished. The visitors were able to collect two hits during the whole game. Their run came as a gift in the eighth inning.

Novotney starred at the bat, collecting a pair of two-base hits and a single out of three times up. "P.O." Hastings ran wild on the bases, pilfering five of the bags to add to his collection. "Rip" Gallagher showed the latest thing in base-running when he gracefully dodged under the catcher's legs and stole home. Each of the pitchers showed good form. The entire team played headsup ball and showed promise of great things to come.

"Green Stockings" is a favorite with amateur players because it always produces a few honest laughs from their audience, even though that same audience on the way home is at a loss to explain those laughs. The lines lack distinction, to such an extent that they must be unusually hard to memorize; the characters match the dialogue; and the plot is a giant farcial structure whose outcome is suspected from the middle of Act I and known from the beginning of Act II, though postponed by the varied machinery of "dramatic suspense."

The Dramatic Club's performance last Wednesday evening did not attain the success of their "Admirable Crichton" of last fall, which if we remember rightly set a standard in quality of play, in production, and in acting which they have not equalled in any subsequent performance. The cast as a whole, especially the men, had difficulty in assuming character, so that people who believe the charm of an amateur play is in seeing their acquaintances appear on the stage as "natural" as on the campus should have been pleased. But we readily grant that the individual actors are more interesting in their proper personalities than in the more colorless roles of the play.

When the entire group of twelve was on the stage, it was often defeated in the manly contest with the numerous properties; not to mention the mere people, who could not be relied upon to stay put as the chairs and tables usually did.

William Faraday, though consistently acted, was a grotesquely youthful head of the house; partly because of voice, costume, and make-up, and partly, perhaps, from numberless whiskey and sodas, without which we feel the play would often have come to a dead stop. James Raleigh was conspicuous and more or less ridiculous, and so should be taken as a fairly satisfactory species of the bally ass.

The most distinguished bits of character acting were given by Mr. Fussell as Admiral Grice and Miss Broomell as Aunt Ida. They put us at our ease as once in the visionary Victorian society which depended so much upon table-pounding, tender-hearted admirals and aunts who fainted fetchingly at the right time.

The play, however, revolves around the two chief characters, Colonel Smith and Celia Faraday. Neither Professor Cady nor Miss Gaylor showed the subtleness in acting which might have made their respective parts more individually appealing. But they did handle convincingly a difficult series of mistaken-identity scenes (protracted by the unkind author almost beyond human endurance).

BASEBALL SQUAD OFF ON FIVE DAY SOUTHERN JAUNT

Worcester Polytechnic To Be First Opponents

B. C. NEXT

Team Is Rapidly Getting Into Season's Stride

The Varsity baseball team left Middlebury yesterday for a five day trip through southern New England. During the trip they will meet Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Boston College, Boston University, and Providence. Each of these schools has a strong team and can be counted on to give Middlebury some stiff opposition.

Although the team has lacked practice, it is rapidly rounding into shape and is expected to give a good account of itself. Coach Morey believes that his pitching staff, although inexperienced, can be counted upon to make a good showing. "P. O." Hastings and "Jack" Witham are the only veterans of last year's staff. They are both showing their former skill, although Witham's arm is not in the best of condition. Frank Towne seems to be the find among the new men. He has done good work in both games and the coach believes that he shows great promise.

The team seems to be a bit weak in the receiving end, Kilbride being the only dependable catcher. Novotny, by virtue of his hard hitting and the amount of ground he can cover, has earned a position in the outfield.

The team will meeet Worcester Polytechnic Institute this afternoon. Worcester has a good team this year and will no doubt give the Panther nine a hard tussle. The line-up in this game will in all probability be the same as that which started the New York State Teachers game here last Friday. Coach Morey was undecided when he left yesterday as to whom he would assign the pitching duties.

Tomorrow Captain Hasting's men will go to Boston for a two day stop. Boston College will be their first opponent there. Boston College has not lost a game yet this year, having made a clean sweep of her southern trip. The strong U. V. M. nine bowed to Boston College by the close margin of 6-5. On Friday, the Blue will meet Boston University. B. U. defeated the strong Lowell Textile team, by a score of 7-4, but was swamped by Boston College by a score of 17-2.

The team winds up the trip on Saturday when it plays Providence College. Providence has made a fair showing this year and can be counted on to give the Varsity a fight. Providence held Yale 5-4, early in the season.

The trip, regardless of its outcome in games won and lost, will give the men some necessary experience, and will put them in fighting trim for the games here Junior Week.

Coach Morey took the following men: Gallagher, Klevenow, Papke, Whitney, Hastings, Kilbride, Martin, Novotny, Ross, Towne, Witham, White, Williams, Daly.

St. Johnsbury Alumnus Pays Glowing Tribute

Dear Mr. Editor:

Men, women, alumni, alumnae, friends, one and all of Middlebury, have you known, have you heard, have you been told? The student body at Middlebury, one hundred per cent contrbuting, have pledged $91,014 to the Endowment Fund! Has there been a greater faith and devotion in the four score, and more than two score more years of the history of the College? And whence came these youths thus early to learn that Life's best portion lies in assuming and meeting obligations? It was a fine thing to do, in fact a glorious accomplishment. It is a great tribute to the College, but not less to the spirit and quality of its student body.

Compliments and greetings, all laud and high honor, to the splendid student body of Middlebury College!

Edgar R. Brown, '93.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., April 28, 1923.

INTERCOLLEGIATE

Radcliffe. The Radcliffe Associates have elected as the new president of Radcliffe College, Miss Ada Louise Comstock, present Dean of Smith College.

Dartmouth. The Dartmouth has an editorial from which the following is extracted: "We confess to a growing irritation at the thought that we are supposed to be getting religion simply because we sign a card sixty-five times a semester. Religion or love of religion cannot be legislatured into a man's make-up. Experience teaches that attempts to do so often bring quite unlooked for results. And this is especially true when the chapel service is little more than a wasted eight minutes to most men—a necessary evil that is tolerated though not wanted. It would be different if the student body entered into the service with a willing spirit and enthusiasm. As it is we doubt if God is very much interested in Dartmouth's morning chapel, except that He may be offended at the hypocrisy of holding such an assembly in the name of religion."

MIDD'S MILLION TERMED SUBSIDY

Education Declared More Important Than Ships

Middlebury's Million, if it were being sought from Congress, would be termed a subsidy, an educational subsidy; for that is what it amounts to.

President Harding advocated a ship subsidy because of the belief that the American Merchant Marine was a valuable enough commercial and military asset to the Nation to warrant keeping it in general operation even though accruing losses would have to be met by the government. Such did the chief executive consider the importance of keeping the American flag on the seven seas.

Important Service Performed

Middlebury seeks a subsidy to keep a purely American educational institution up to the standard which has for one hundred and twenty-three years enabled the venerable college to do even a greater service to the nation. Ships can be built in a day, but a broad training for leadership is a product of years.

A subsidy becomes necessary when the income of an organization or institution is less than its cost of operation. Three alternatives are open in such an event. The income can be augmented by increasing charges for the service performed, the service may be discontinued or the deficit may be met by a subsidy. Cheapening the service itself is not to be considered.

Middlebury cannot place her students at the disadvantage of having to pay more in tuition and fees than they would have to pay at other institutions performing the same grade of educational service. The impecunious student of ability should always find a welcome at Middlebury College.

Discontinuance of Middlebury's proud service is a thought to be scorned.

Endowment Only Alternative

The reasonable course is to provide a subsidy, to raise an endowment. And that is what the Middlebury alumni have organized to do, and will do.

Eighty per cent of the income of Middlebury is stable. Twenty per cent can be classed as unstable. The former is derived from present tuition fees, $150 a year from each student, and from the present endowment. The other is made up of a decreasing appropriation from the state, an annual but not permanent grant from the General Education Board and sundry minor sources.

Total Income Inadequate

Even though the present income were made 100 per cent stable it would allow no increase in service, no adequate salaries for faithful faculty members. More generously endowed institutions would continue to call away able instructors by offering salaries commensurate with their ability, and those who remained for love of Middlebury would continue to find that old age brought little more than grim prospects of a penurious death.

Business Building

THE selling of commodities is fundamental in every business, and selling life insurance affords the maximum of satisfaction and remuneration. For the life insurance salesman is a business builder and finds innumerable ways to serve the community and make himself indispensable in the conduct of modern affairs.

The life insurance salesman is not only a business builder but he is in business for himself, creating a competence permanent and continuous. It is the best paid work for those who are ambitious and willing to work, and who have the character and stamina necessary to stamp their individuality upon the business and on their community.

The traditions and practices of the JOHN HANCOCK are such that the college graduate can take a peculiar pride in representing this company. You are liable to remain in the business you enter on leaving college. Before making a definite decision inquire into life insurance as a career. Write, "Agency Department."

And now everybody is talking 2-6-1.

Middlebury Endowment Is Likened To Subsidy

Each year for the past eighteen it has cost Middlebury from $110.10 to $302.02 more per student to operate the College than was received from all student sources.

The students of today have with unprecedented enthusiasm subscribed their share and over, a total of $91,014

If the students of yesterday will in the same spirit of loyalty make up the deficit they occasioned the College in only one year, Middlebury will have her million.

SHOES
At $2.95
Sizes 5½ to 12
Never again will you be able to buy these shoes at such a low price. We were lucky in finding a manufacturer, who was overstocked with them, and needed ready cash, so we bought them at almost one-half of the regular price. This shoe is made over the U. S. Army Munson-last, with extra heavy stitching; special grained chrome brown leather used throughout. An ideal shoe for workmen, farmers, icemen, postmen, carpenters and motormen, who are obliged to be on their feet all day.
Send correct size. Pay Postman $2.95 on delivery, or send us a money order.
If you are not satisfied with these shoes after you examine them, we will promptly refund your money.

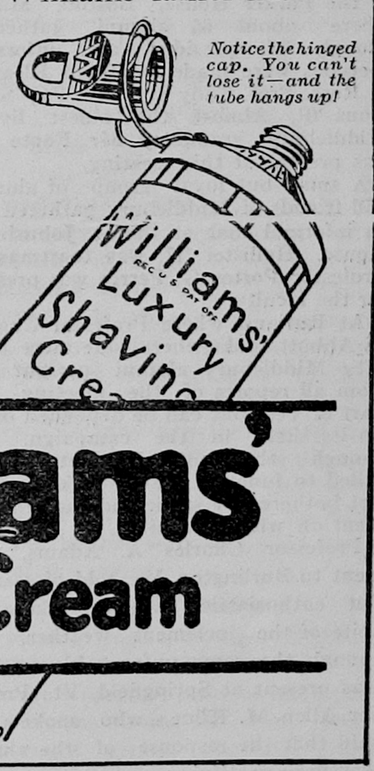
What do they mean "Senior Wrangler"?

YOU may not have met one of those dear old boys,—Oxonian stuff, what, what?—but our idea of a senior wrangler is a '23 man trying to work up a lather with the wrong kind of shaving cream.

There's no "wrangling" necessary to get a lather with Williams' Shaving Cream. Squeeze out a spendthrift's dab or a tightwad's dab—it's all the same. Either way you get a big, efficient lather that softens the beard right down to the base of every hair.

And best of all, this big Williams' lather has a decidedly beneficial effect on your skin. No complexion soap could do more for you than Williams' does every time you shave. Get a tube of Williams' today and begin giving your face this helpful care.



Notice the hinged cap. You can't lose it—and the tube hangs up!

New York Alumni Rally On Eve of Big Campaign

night in many of these places, the professors reported much cooperation and willingness to help from all the alumni which they met.

Professor Sanford made the longest pilgrimage to talk at a Middlebury dinner, going to Cleveland where he addressed a small but loyal group of graduates. A Middlebury section was organized at the dinner and the Ohio alumni in the future plan to keep much closer i ntouch with each other.

Chicago reported that the dinner held there was the largest Middlebury gathering ever held west of New York and their quota was assured on the first night.

Professor W. S. Burrage went to the dinner at Montpelier. In spite of unfavorable weather the alumni of that vicinity turned out in fine style and pledged themselves to do their utmost for their Alma Mater. The dinner was held in the building of the National Life Insurance company and several officials of the company were present as alumni. The feeling was general among those present that their obligation to Midd was greater even than that expressed by the 2-6-1 quota.

As were those at other dinners, the alumni at the Springfield, Mass., meeting were greatly impressed by the great showing made by the undergraduates, said Dean E. J. Wiley on his return from that city. "I found a very loyal body of alumni there and although the failure of the radio operator to show up at the appointed time led to disappointment in that part of the program it was more than made up for by the enthusiasm of the meeting. What the alumni in Springfield lacked in numbers they made up in spirit."

News of the campus was greatly in demand at the Middlebury dinner in Syracuse, N. Y., according to Professor Everett Skillings who spoke there. "How the campus had changed in appearance and how the present classes compared with those of their time were some of the things in which they showed a special interest. The response of the undergraduates impressed them greatly."

At Albany, N. Y., about 40 people attended the Middlebury dinner at The Hotel Hampton. Professor Duane L. Robinson represented the faculty there. The other speakers besides himself were Rev. William H. Hammersley '04, Rev. Luther Brown '97, and Miss Margaret Writer. Hon. Alexander McDonald was toastmaster.

Professor Frank L. Cady reported an enthusiastic and enjoyable banquet at the Parker House, Boston, Mass., where about 65 alumni gathered. Clough '14, presided, and informal speeches were made by Dean Eleanor S. Ross, Prof. Cady and Mr. Fay Simmons '01. Almost the oldest living Middlebury graduate, Mr. Foote '57, was present at this meeting.

A small but loyal group of alumni and friends of Middlebury gathered for an informal chat at the St. Johnsbury House. Hollister '17, was toastmaster. Professor Porter G. Perrin was present for the faculty.

At Rutland, where Professor Charles F. Abbott spoke, there were more than fifty Middlebury alumni present and from all reports of the meeting this part of Vermont can be depended on to do its share in the campaign. Although the radio installation here failed to function the speakers were not bothered by static and the program went off without a hitch.

Professor Charles A. Adams, who went to Burlington, Vt., told of a small but enthusiastic gathering there, in spite of the inclement weather. Although the same unfavorable weather was present at Springfield, Vt., Professor Allen M. Kline, who spoke there said that the response of the alumni was very gratifying.

Faculty Changes For Next Year Are Announced

American Literature and Public Speaking. Mr. John Wright, who has been taking Prof. Davison's place will not return next year.

Miss Martha Bolton '23, is to have the Fellowship in English which is held at present by Mr. Wright. Mr. William A. Huggard, who is an instructor of English this year will not return.

Miss Marian H. Studley, a graduate of Wellesley in the class of '07 and who received M. A. from the University of Michigan in '21, will be an assistant professor of English.

Mr. Perley C. Perkins, a graduate of New Hampshire State College in the class of '22, and who will receive his M. A. degree this year, will be an instructor in English. Mr. Perkins is a Vermonter by birth.

Miss Dorothy Slayton, '23, will be an instructor in Music next year. Miss Grace A. Stoolfire and Miss Madeline I. Gaylor will not return next fall.

Monsieur and Madame Albert Cru are to be added to the teaching staff of the French Department. Madamoiselle Marie Bideaud will not return.

Prof. Primitivo R. Sanjurjo, assistant professor of Spanish, also will not return next fall. His successor has not been appointed as yet.

Prof. Stewart MacDonald, who is teaching Economics this year, will not return. Prof. Floyd N. House, a graduate of the University of Colorado and who is at present studying for a doctor's degree at the University of Chicago, will replace him.

Miss Mary C. Dutton, an assistant professor of Home Economics and the college dietitian, will retire from active service in the Home Economics Department and Miss Clara B. Knapp will act as head of the Home Economics Department.

Mr. Ross G. Frounick, an instructor in Latin, who has been replacing Prof. Raymond H. White, will retire upon his return.

Mr. Walter R. Kirner, a graduate of the University of Illinois in the class of '18, who received his M. S. in '20, and is a candidate for Ph. D. at Harvard in 1924, will be an instructor in Chemistry to replace Prof. Arthur R. Davis who will be on a leave of absence. Mr. Kirner is a mature man with wide teaching experience, having taught Advanced Organic Chemistry at Harvard and Chemistry at the University of Illinois.

MAY DAY is past and the children were delighted with the baskets, as well as some of the grown folks that we know of.

MOTHER'S DAY is next, and we have just received another lot of those Liggett's Sentiment pakages with that very appropriate motto, $1.50. Also some beautiful cards.
